

Information on dwelling numbers in the population register

The Swedish parliament has decided that all dwellings in Sweden must be entered in a dwelling register together with their dwelling numbers, and that the population register will include these numbers. It will then be possible to compile statistics on households and dwellings more easily and cheaply than through the previously conducted population and housing census.

Statistics that describe how we live are needed for the planning of our society. Statistics are needed at a national and municipal level for planning, allocation of resources, research and so on.

The Swedish government has given the Swedish Tax Agency the task of population registration at the level of dwellings. This takes place by you notifying the Tax Agency of the number that your dwelling has been given.

Questionnaire

The questionnaire you have received with this folder is for those people who are registered at the same address and who have a relationship with each other in the population register, such as parents and children. The questionnaire is addressed to the eldest of these people. The Tax Agency will then be able to automatically process conditions that have changed since the questionnaire was written, such as children born or members of a family who have moved, emigrated or died. Partners who do not have children together will both receive a questionnaire.

Where can you find the dwelling number?

The new dwelling number consists of four digits and must be put up in a clearly visible place in the building. The landlord must also inform you of your dwelling number. Contact your landlord if you have not received information on your dwelling number. The landlord may have other dwelling numbers used for administration purposes which are also used for mortgages etc. This is not the number that you should give to the Tax Agency. You can read about how the dwelling number is composed on the next page.

What must I do?

Your help is important and is only needed on this one occasion. You can read more about how to submit your dwelling number on the next page.

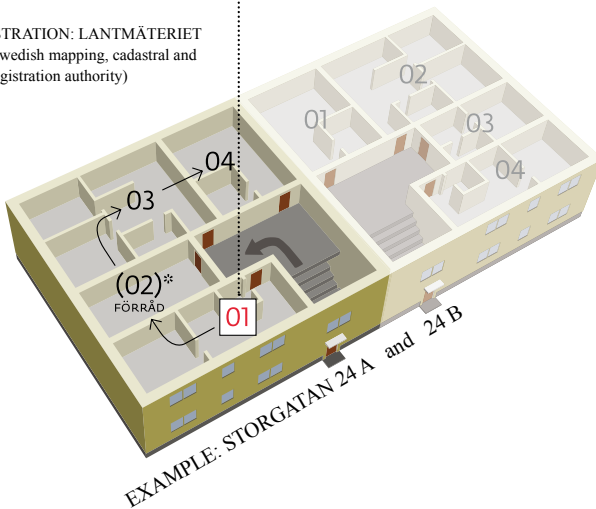

The floors are numbered starting from the entrance floor, which is given the number 10. Floors above the entrance floor are numbered 11, 12 and so on.

If there are floors with apartments below the entrance floor, the floor immediately below the entrance floor is numbered 09, the next 08, 07 and so on. This also applies to split levels.

1 0 0 1

Dwelling numbers consist of four digits. The first two digits describe the floor and the last two digits describe the location of the dwelling on the floor.

The numbering of dwellings on each floor starts with 01 for the dwelling to the left of the staircase when coming up to the floor from below. Numbering then continues clockwise.

* Rooms and other spaces that could be converted into dwellings are given numbers in the same fashion as described above, and a gap is left in the sequence of dwelling numbers. The numbers of such spaces will only be used if the space is converted into a dwelling.
